Business Protection Specialists Adds Systems Design Expert DeArruda

RALEIGH, N.C. – Business Protection Specialists, Inc. today announced Steven DeArruda has joined the company in the role of senior security designer. DeArruda holds 27 years of security design and management experience. His hiring expands the company's east coast footprint and forms a new Lakeville, Mass. office to serve the greater Boston region. Business Protection Specialists also has locations in Raleigh, N.C. and Canandaigua, N.Y.

“Steven DeArruda is a seasoned veteran in security systems design, security engineering and management,” said Frank Pisciotta, president of Business Protection Specialists and board vice president of the International Association of Professional Security Consultants (IAPSC). “He adds depth to our consulting team as we support corporate security managers across many industries such as oil, gas and chemical, higher education, government, manufacturing, agriculture and food security.”

DeArruda is a trained senior security systems designer with comprehensive experience in systems analysis, design and integration. He is a member of BICSI, the Building Industry Consulting Services International professional association.

Business Protection Specialists, Inc. is a high-performance security management consultancy dedicated to helping organizations eliminate crime before it happens. The BPS team of experts features IAPSC-certified security consultants who provide objective recommendations for security protection and management, independent from security systems manufacturers. The company's proactive recommendations help organizations properly analyze threats, identify vulnerability and assess risk to develop practical security management procedures and security system design.
